

U.S. Trade and Tariff Regulatory Update

Tariffs for China and Hong Kong SAR Country of Origin Goods

- On April 11, 2025, the U.S. announced exclusions to the IEEPA Reciprocal Tariff for certain headings and subheading of the HTSUS related to semiconductors, cell phones, and other electronics.
 - These exclusions are retroactive back to April 5, 2025 and will remove the tariffs that were announced in previous communications dating back to April 2, 2025
 - These headings and subheadings are still subject to the IEEPA Fentanyl tariffs announced in February 2025.
 - For a full list of the impacted HTSUS headings and subheading, please see CSMS 64724565.
 - There is an extended process for completing a typical Section 232 investigation and the above conditions mentioned above are subject to change.
- Effective April 10, 2025, the IEEPA reciprocal tariff rate for products of China and Hong Kong SAR origins will be adjusted from 84% to 125%.
 - These tariffs are in addition to existing tariffs. Including the IEEPA tariffs from February 2025, an additional tariff totaling 145% now applies to goods of China and Hong Kong SAR origins.
- Effective May 2, 2025, duty-free de minimis application will be eliminated for low-value goods originating from China and Hong Kong SAR.

Please see below tables for more information on the respective entry types based on shipment value, requirements and applicable fees for goods originating from China or Hong Kong SAR origins.

Customs Brokerage Glossary

Please refer to below glossaries to optimise your filling process and enhance your customs clearance efficiency.

IOR	Tax ID Number
The Importer of Record (IOR) is the person or company legally responsible for ensuring compliance with U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) regulations when importing goods into the United States. This includes paying all required duties, taxes, and fees. The IOR can be a U.S. entity or individual or, in some cases, a foreign entity acting as a Non-Resident Importer (NRI).	A tax ID number can be one of the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Employer Identification Number (EIN) - Used by U.S.-based companies. Social Security Number (SSN) - Used by U.S.-based individuals. CBP Assigned Number (CAN) - Available for foreign-based companies or individuals, also known as Non-Resident Importer (NRI) number.
Bond	MID
A customs bond is a contract, or agreement, among U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP), the Importer of Record (IOR), and a surety company, ensuring compliance with import regulations and guaranteeing payment of duties and penalties. There are two common types of customs bonds: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Single Entry Bond (SEB) - Covers one import shipment. Continuous Bond - Covers multiple shipments over a set period (usually a year). 	The Manufacturer Identification (MID) is a unique identification code used by U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) for tracking and identifying the manufacturer of imported goods. The MID is constructed from the name and address of the manufacturer.

Commercial Invoice Guide for Shipping to the U.S.

To ensure smooth customs clearance and maintain trade compliance standards, commercial invoices for shipments are critical. As primary tariff documentation for international trade transactions, these invoices directly affect customs processing efficiency and compliance risk assessment. Below is our comprehensive guide for completing commercial invoices under different entry types.

Commercial Invoice Guide

Against the backdrop of fluctuating tariffs, here we offer a concise overview of how to fill out commercial invoices according to different types of entries.

A commercial invoice should be filled with these information: Shipper, Shipment Details, Recipient, IOR, Package Details and Final Cost. Note: Tax ID is not mandatory for Informal Entry but is required for Formal Entry.
